H. Paul Barringer

Mr. Paul Barringer was regarded as one of the best reliability, manufacturing, and engineering consultants available worldwide. His global business practice involved reliability consulting, and training for a variety of discrete and continuous process manufacturing companies and service industries. He developed training courses in Reliability Engineering Principles, Process Reliability, and Life Cycle Cost. Paul accumulated more than forty-five years of engineering and manufacturing experience in design, production, quality, maintenance, and reliability of technical products. His experience included both technical and bottom-line aspects of operating a business aided by an understanding of how reliable products and processes contribute to financial success.

Paul Barringer became the number one resource for help with production process continuous improvement. He consulted for massive production facilities like DOW Chemical and DuPont and almost all petroleum refinery businesses as well as many other organizations and technical societies. During his many productive years, his extreme positive attitude contributed to the success of his business and to the success of countless others.
